GOSSIP OF A DAY COLLECTED BY OUR CORRESPONDENT

Kittery, April 29.
The planting of 4,000 female lobsters off this part of the coast by the fish commission steamer Gaunett on Saturday should prove a good piece of work for local lobstermen. The lobsters had been stripped of their eggs at the boothbay hatchery.
The express team of E. D. Grace, heavily laden with freight, broke down Saturday afternoon at The Intervene and serious consequences were barely averted.

A regular meeting of Riverside Lodge of Odd Fellows will be held this evening at Odd Fellows' Hall.

The time tables for the York Harbor and Beach railroad have been issued.

General Manager Meloon of the Atlantic Shore line is in Wells and Ogunkit on business connected with the extension of the trolley line to Kennebunk.

At a recent meeting of the directors of the Atlantic Shore line it was voted to build a brick rotary station and a car barn forty by 100 feet at Ogunkit, the whole to cost $10,000.

A number of gasoline boats and fishing parties were out Sunday, notwithstanding the disagreeable weather.

Kittery Point

Funeral services over the body of Benjamin R. Frisbee of Boston were held at the Free Baptist Church at two o'clock Sunday afternoon. Interment was in the church cemetery.

Rev. Frederic R. Champlin has left to join his wife in New York.

Capt. Horace M. Seaward and Morton M. Seaward, respective master and steward of the schooner Annie F. Conlon, passed Sunday with their families here. This afternoon the vessel will leave Portland for Boothbay to load ice for Jamestown, Va. She will then load coal for a southern port and return north with hard pine lumber. A charter from Philadelphia to Jacksonville has been cancelled.

There was no service at the First Christian Church Sunday on account of the funeral of Benjamin R. Frisbee.

George T. Vaughan of Portsmouth was in town Sunday.

Tug M. Mitchell Davis towed the three-masted schooner Isabel B. Wiley to Portland Saturday, returning Sunday morning. The Wiley had had a long passage from Jacksonville, was in bad sailing trim and as there was no immediate prospect of a fair wind, Capt. Wiley decided to tow. The Wiley has made but a few trips. She was launched last fall at Bath and is of 776-tonnage.

Extensive repairs are being made to the highway at Hutchins Corner.

GETTING OUT A MAGAZINE

Park Mitchell of Manchester and D. W. Flinn of Keene, both of the New Hampshire Federation of Labor, have been in this city for the past two days on business in connection with an official organ, soon to be issued by the trades union of the state.

MAYFLOWER SEEKERS SUCCESSFUL

Many people from this city visited the Elliot woods in search of mayflowers on Sunday and the fragrant blossoms were found in great quantities.

VALUABLE ASSET

Paper Plant Is That, Beyond A Doubt

A FLOURISHING AND GROWING INDUSTRY

The Monthly Pay Roll Is Now More Than $14,000

OVER TWO HUNDRED WORKMEN EMPLOYED BY COMPANY

It is probable that the people of Portsmouth do not fully realize just how valuable an asset the plant of the Publishers' Paper Company at Freeman's Point has become to this city. The present managers have proceeded quietly with no red fire and no blare of trumpets, but they have built up a flourishing industry and one which seems certain to gain in importance.

The number of men employed at the plant is now more than 200 and all but a very few are well paid men. More than $14,000 is required every month for the payroll, a sum which, while not enormous, means a considerable volume of trade in this city.

That the paper company is doing business is evidenced by the fact that its monthly freight bills range between $15,000 and $20,000. Large quantities of pulp are constantly being sold, much of it being sent to places in the Middle West.

Manila paper of excellent quality is also being manufactured and for this a ready market is found. A representative of The Herald saw large quantities of this paper at the plant a few days ago, much of it packed in bales, ready for shipment to customers. The reporter also saw the company's men at work packing pulp in freight cars for shipment out of the city.

The plant is strictly modern and the impression gained by one who walks through it is a distinctly favorable one. There are great quantities of pulpwood on hand, but that the stock available is not considered sufficient for the company's needs is proven by the fact that fresh consignments are constantly being received.

Many residents of this city are numbered among those employed by the company and the force is likely to be increased in a very short time.

STAFF OFFICERS

Appointed By Commander Of The State Grand Army

Comdr. W. S. Pillsbury of the New Hampshire department, Grand Army, has issued orders for the observance of Memorial day and Memorial Sunday. He has also appointed these staff officers:

Assistant Adjutant General, Frank Battles, post 2, Concord.

Assistant Quartermaster General, Granville F. Plummer, post 41, Londonderry.

Department Inspector, Jesse E. Dewey, post 13, Lebanon.

Judge Advocate, John G. Crawford, post 94, West Manchester.

Chief Musterling Officer, J. B. Sanborn, post 74, Chester.

Patriotic Instructor, D. E. Proctor, post 71, Wilton.

Senior Aide-de-Camp, S. S. Piper, post 3, Manchester.

Post commanders will send to headquarters the name of some comrade of their post to serve as aide on the staff of the department commander.

WILL MARRY IN NEW YORK

Mr. Hughes to Wed Young Lady of That City

John L. Hughes, a former member of Portsmouth Lodge of Elks, and Portsmouth Council, Knights of Columbus, now mayor of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., has announced his engagement to a charming young lady of New York city. The wedding is to occur in June at the Ascension Church, 107th street and Broadway.

Mayor Hughes was formerly connected with the commissary department of the army at Fort Constitution and it is his record in wedded life equals his record as a bachelor and in the service of the war department he and his bride-to-be should be most happy.

His many warm friends, made in club and social life while stationed here, join in extending to him best wishes and hearty congratulations.

Tramps Who Boarded Train Here Arrested at Newburyport

Four tramps, who are said to have boarded freight No. 250 in this city on Saturday, were arrested at Newburyport on the arrival of the train there, for breaking and entering a freight car on the same train and stealing shoes.

The thieves, in jumping from the train, ran directly into the hands of the police, who had been waiting for them. During the trip they fitted themselves with shoes and were caught with the new goods on their feet.

WHAT ARE THE TICKETS WORTH?

Joseph Saunders, the colored boxing artist and a former member of the ship's company of the gunboat Eagle, has arranged through his manager, George Manley, for a contest with a well known employee of the Boston and Maine railroad, the bout soon to be pulled off.

THE WEATHER FOR TOMORROW

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, April 29—Generally fair weather is indicated for Tuesday, though there is a possibility of showers. The winds will vary from north to east.

The campaign against the brown-tail moths was late in starting, but it was a vigorous one.

SHOP WINDOWS.

"I used to think that the money spent for light in show windows from closing time till late at night was waste," said a Market street merchant the other day while discussing with a friend the phenomenal growth of his business during recent years. "I have changed my mind, however, about lights, and now I keep my windows lighted to a very late hour. I took the trouble to make some investigations as to the value of shop windows before I changed my system. I found that in day time, when the streets are filled, no one has time for more than a glance at the displays. But at night, and particularly late at night, while there are fewer people out, they are not in a hurry, and many of them stop to examine the goods shown. I have frequently seen men, women, too, who were window shopping before my store at night inside buying the things the next day. Many people in the city keep themselves posted on fashions and on what is to be had in the stores by window shopping."

IN HAVEN PARK

Work Planned By Improvement Society

OBJECT IS TO BEAUTIFY THE PLACE

Plan Made By New Hampshire College Experts

NO EXPENSE TO BE INCURRED BY THE CITY

The Mayor, Superintendent Leslie Norman and the City Improvement Society are busy on plans for the beautifying of Haven Park.

On Saturday, Prof. Fowler and an assistant from New Hampshire College came here in response to an invitation from the Mayor and the Improvement Society and looked over the situation. Later they will return, with an engineer from the college and make a survey of the park from which a plan will be drawn and given to the city for use.

This plan will be a great help in the work and all improvements that are made each year will be in accordance with the plan, regardless of who may be superintendent.

Owing to the lateness of the season, nothing will be done this year more than to plan the work.

The Improvement Society, it is said, will pay for the alterations to be made and no expense will be incurred by the city for the plans made by the landscape men from New Hampshire College.

This will inaugurate a system at the park, do away with much unnecessary work and beautify it according to a modern plan.

FOR ASSESSORS

Money Set Aside From Contingent Fund for Their Use

After a recent regular meeting of the city council, the members were again called together and the matter of expenses for the assessors of taxes in their work of canvassing and in other duty was brought up.

By a vote of the council, $1,000 was set aside from the contingent fund for this purpose.

NEW PAY OFFICER

Pay Director James A. Ring Appointed to Place in This City

Pay Director James A. Ring, until recently on waiting orders at Athens, N. Y., today (Monday) relieved Pay Director James E. Cann as purchasing pay officer for the navy department in this city.

Pay Director Cann has been ill for the past two months and on account of his illness has been relieved.

HAS BROUGHT SUIT

Attorney Samuel W. Emery, Jr., has brought two suits against the Conway Company for $4,000 and $7,500, in behalf of Contractor W. D. Smith of Bangor, Me. The first suit is for conversion of tools and the second for money alleged to be due on a contract. The suits are based on work done on the company's railroad in the Swift River valley during the Summer and Fall of 1906.

WHERE IS THE SHAMROCK?

Four handsome flower beds have been put into Goodwin Park by Supt. Norman, two on the State street side and two fronting on Istington street. The new beds will add much to the beauty of the park.

INVITATION DANCE

The Girls' Social Club is to give an invitation dancing party in Peirce Hall on Thursday evening.

LIVES FOR OTHERS

MRS. FEARN, OF WASHINGTON,
TRUE PHILANTHROPIST.

Her Mission the Amelioration of the Condition of the Blind—Queen of Roumania Her
Close Friend.

A fascinating and forcible philanthropist whose mission and its appeal is unique, is Mrs. Walker Fearn, of Washington, a grand dame of queenly mien, who has spent most of her life at European capitals. Mrs. Fearn's late husband was United States minister to Roumania, in which interesting country the couple became intimately identified with "Carmen Sylva," Elizabeth, the beautiful, the good, the brilliantly endowed queen, perhaps the most remarkable woman in the world, possessing almost every talent and every grace.

The queen of Roumania found a ready sympathizer and coadjutor in her various humane enterprises in the charming American, the two women being confidentially in rapport. Mrs. Fearn and "Carmen Sylva," the royal poet and philanthropist, worked hand in hand, Mrs. Fearn's especial enthusiasm being enlisted in the queen's wonderful mission to the blind. There are 20,000 of the sightless in the small country of Roumania, and for the amelioration and uplift of the condition of these unfortunate the queen is building an especial city, "Vatra Luminoasa"—the "luminous hearth," where every possible physical and educational advantage will be afforded the beneficiaries. Mrs. Fearn, since her return to America, is pursuing the same line of humane endeavor here as was inspired by her friend, the beautiful queen of Roumania, with whom she is in constant communication. Mrs. Fearn is consecrating, gratuitously the best efforts of her life to the relief of the blind, her philanthropy being expressed immediately in a vividly interesting lecture that she gives called "A Mission of Love to the Blind," with stereoscopic views taken from intimate home scenes and royal glimpses at the Roumanian capital. Mrs. Fearn wears during her lectures, a wonderful native Roumanian costume, a court dress presented to her by Queen Elizabeth, heavy in embroideries of silver. A long, white flowing veil winds gracefully at the back. Mrs. Fearn, one of the effective social factors of Washington, entertained an appreciative company of friends charmingly at her home in Massachusetts avenue, with talk about her work, and illustrations and a rich collation. Her own picturesque Swain maid also wore a beautiful Roumanian costume of the appropriate class. Mrs. Fearn, formerly Miss Frances Hewitt, was born in Louisville.

Most of her early life was spent in New Orleans. She is starting on a tour at once to carry her beautiful message to other parts of the country, going first to Cincinnati, where she will be the guest of her life-long friend, Mrs. Longworth. Then Kentucky, Tennessee, New Orleans, Texas, Indiana and other sections will have the privilege of hearing this charming woman who has consecrated her life gratuitously, to so noble and benign a cause. At her lecture at Rauscher's to a tremendous, fashionable audience, Mrs. Fearn was introduced by the Rev. Dr. Condon, the blind chaplain of the house of representatives. A recent autograph message from the queen of Roumania to her sympathetic friend reads, "Bring light to the blind, my dear Mrs. Fearn, and make their life shine for all those whose blind's eye is not yet opened, Elizabeth."

New Homes in Washington.
Only a few days ago the announcement was made of the half million-dollar home to be built at Washington by August Belmont. Today it is general gossip that options have been secured by Mrs. Marshall Field, of Chicago, and George W. Vanderbilt, of New York and Baltimore, on residence property in the northwest. The property on which the homes for these millionaires is to be erected is the west end of the square fronting on a small park formed by the intersection of New Hampshire avenue and Seventeenth street. The property has a frontage of nearly 200 feet.

Terrace and Mount Vernon.
Mount Vernon, the home of Washington and his burial place, is visited by thousands of tourists every year, but Washingtonians don't go there. You hear Washington folks endeavoring to flag their visiting relatives and friends from other places from the trip to Mount Vernon. Most folks who visit Washington want to see Mount Vernon. They suggest the trip to their Washington entertainers as soon as they get there.

Reward for Faithful Service.
For the last two years of his service in congress Mr. Theodore Olsen, of Milwaukee, Wis., has led a Sunday night sacred song service for the guests of the hotel in which he lived at Washington. Recently he was presented with a gold watch in behalf of those whom he had led in the service—congressman Crumpacker's wife making the presentation speech.

Cabinet Officers' Signatures.
Secretary Root, although his full name, Elihu Root, is not a long one, found it laborious to put his whole name on his state department mail, so he now simply signs it "E. Root." Secretary Bonaparte's right arm does not seem to have grown tired, however. In signing his mail he still signs his full name, "Charles J. Bonaparte."

The Importance of an Active Liver

Are you bilious? Look after your liver. Those dizzy spells, that sick headache, sallow skin, furred tongue, lack of appetite, the dull eyes, yes, even your peevishness, all come from a derangement of the bile glands. You are apt to be troubled that way, especially in the Spring, unless you take good care of your liver. It needs special attention at this time of the year because Nature is trying to find herself after the strain of winter work and living.

Be kind to your liver and do not dose it with violent drugs or purgatives. Simply use

BEECHAM'S PILLS

These are all the medicine the liver needs now. Purely vegetable, mildly cathartic and very thorough in their action, they regulate the liver without shock to the digestive organs or to the bowels. Take them according to the directions whenever the liver is torpid, the bowels inactive, or when a sick headache, nausea or a feeling of dullness tell you that the bile needs regulating.

Beecham's Pills are a reliable Springtime remedy for all sluggish conditions of the stomach, liver and bowels—one that has kept faith with the people for over half a century. A safe remedy for every man, woman and child. Used in thousands of homes in every part of the civilized world, with the most happy results, to

HIGH SCHOOL WINS

Defeats Berwick Academy On Saturday

LOCAL TEAM PLAYS GOOD BALL—QUINN'S PITCHING A FEATURE

At South Berwick on Saturday afternoon the baseball team of Portsmouth High school defeated the team of Berwick Academy in an interscholastic league game six to two.

Portsmouth had the better of the contest throughout. Berwick scored but one inning, the sixth, when a hit by Gilman and errors by Fredrick, Driscoll and Stockbridge, were responsible for two runs.

Quinn pitched fine ball, allowing but four hits and striking out eleven men. Knight was also effective, but his support fell much to be desired.

Except for the sixth inning, Portsmouth played decidedly well in the field.

Aside from the pitching of Quinn and Knight, the batting of Call and Swasey were the features.

The score:

DERWICK CLASS PLAY

Given by Academy Seniors in a Creditable Manner

The class play, "The Great Catastrophe," was given by the seniors of Berwick Academy in Fogg Memorial Hall, South Berwick, last week, before a very enthusiastic audience, which filled the hall, and the performance proved to be one of the most successful of its kind in the history of the academy.

The comedy presented was a particularly entertaining one and was thoroughly well acted in every part. The musical selections between the acts were also much enjoyed.

Great credit is due to all concerned and especially to Miss Pettee, the teacher of English, for her careful training of the participants. The play will probably be repeated in York and Durham.

WORK OF A NOBLE MISSIONARY
AMONG CANNIBALS.

For Forty-Nine Years, in Almost Constant Peril of His Life, Dr. Paton Labored in the New Hebrides.

The death of Rev. John Gibson Paton, the missionary apostle to the New Hebrides, in his eighty-third year, was reported by cable from Canterbury, Australia. In 1858 Dr. Paton decided to go to the New Hebrides because he felt that "in a religious sense it was the darkest place in the world." For 49 years he worked among the natives of the islands, and few men have had a career so full of thrilling adventures, hairbreadth escapes and dreadful tragedy as his.

Tanna, the island on which he first landed, was inhabited by cannibals of most ferocious description. At first he had the companionship of his young wife and their little son, but a few months after their arrival both died of fever, and he was left to fight for his life and his religion alone.

Forty times the natives tried to kill him, and 40 times they failed. Six other missionaries who went to assist him in the work were murdered. The islands were visited by British warships and other vessels, and many times Dr. Paton was urged to leave Tanna and seek refuge on some other island where Christianity was beginning to make headway, or in New Zealand.

But he always refused. To him the howling cannibals who at times were literally thirsting for his blood, were "his dear benighted Tannese," and with a heroism remarkable even in the missionary field, he remained at his post.

His escapes from death were almost miraculous. More than once he and his few helpers were besieged in the mission house by the entire population of the island, and death seemed certain.

On one occasion his dog saved him, sometimes his empty revolver frightened his assailants, and the fear the natives had of his "Jehovah God," whom he invoked more than once, proved his salvation.

A friendly chief once presented Dr. Paton with a finely polished wooden spoon. Natives he subsequently met would not believe that Dr. Paton had dared to visit this warrior. He showed them the spoon, and they fled for their lives. Then the missionary learned that his spoon was only used at cannibal feasts, and by the chief himself.

Gradually, however, the fruits of his unceasing work began to make themselves apparent, and a few years ago the number of Christians in the New Hebrides was estimated at 15,000 out of a total population of 80,000. Not the least part of his work was the translation of the Bible into 20 different dialects for the use of the many different tribes on the islands.

Ten years after the death of his first wife he married again, and not many years ago his son was shot at by a hostile tribe and narrowly escaped death.

His visits to England were few and far between. His last was in 1901, and during his brief stay of two months the stalwart figure of the white haired snowy bearded old man with the charming smile was seen on many platforms.

Resourceful.

Detective: Gunishoe (old school)—But this man could not possibly have committed the crime!

Detective: Bludgeon (new school)—What of that?

"Well—er—"
"Of course he could not possibly have committed the crime. Do you imagine I'm looking for something easy? No, sir. I propose to show the world what my method will do. I will extort a confession from the fellow, and I shall convict him, and send him to the gallows, in spite of his innocence, the best lawyers money can procure and a unanimous public sentiment. I, sir, am a detective, not a mere opportunist, who waits for the favorable breeze to carry him to success."

The old-style detective, realizing his hopeless inferiority, was speechless with shame and chagrin.—Puck.

Americans Profane.

Dr. Madison C. Peters in his sermon in the Majestic theater declared that profanity was New York's most popular sin. "In fact," he said, "the Americans are the profane people in the world."

"A distinguished missionary from India, upon his return to America, heard a man using profane language, and addressing him, said: 'This boy was born and brought up in a heathen land, but in all his life he never heard a man blaspheme until now.'"

"This is a utilitarian age." We ask, does swearing pay?

"Men tell me that they don't mean anything by their profanity. When people are awake and do things without meaning to do them they give visible signs of insanity."—New York American.

Collision Not Inevitable.

"If two cars go in opposite directions at great speed on the same track what is the result?"

"Collision."

"Not necessarily. You know they might be going away from each other."

STAIR-CLIMBING AN ART.

Grace and Muscle Result From Doing It Properly.

All the beauties of olden days were painted upon the stairs. They fully understood the artistic value of a graceful pose upon a handsome staircase.

If a woman knows how to go up stairs gracefully she borrows height and dignity and shows off a handsome gown advantageously.

Stair pictures have been very much the vogue in the East the last season. Many society women have posed in this fashion and made lovely pictures. Pose and gown are the essentials.

Many women go up stairs awkwardly and ungracefully. They think chiefly of the climb, and not of how they look.

The figure should not be rigid, but the shoulders should be held erect. One should keep the shoulders well back in descending and the head well up.

From the standpoint of physical culture there is nothing quite the equal of stair climbing. It strengthens the heart; makes the liver active and limbers up the muscles. It is the most graceful of all exercises.

Most women take pains to do as little of it as possible.

The physical culture rule is to climb with the knees without making use of the muscles of the back. But this is very difficult. The knees grow very tired. There is a distinct art in throwing one's self forward until one goes up naturally and easily. But one must not double up nor bend the shoulders.

Most women puff when going up stairs. But this is a sign of a weak pair of lungs. Others groan and grunt, but this means tender muscles and a weak heart. The woman who arrives at the head of the stairs dizzy and panting is in bad need of a course in physical culture. And the woman who cannot climb at all is in a sad condition physically. She should begin at the very lowest rounds of the gymnasium ladder.

It is worth any woman's while to learn to go up stairs easily and gracefully.

Sikh Burial Rites Observed.

A strange religious ceremony was observed last week just outside the city of Nelson in British Columbia, when the body of Sunder Singh, ex-sergeant in a Burmese regiment, was burned on a funeral pyre according to the rites of the Sikh religion, which somewhat resembles Brahminism. Every Sikh corpse must be disposed of by fire and water. Sunder Singh was one of a party of 20 Sikhs, most of them also ex-soldiers of the Indian empire, who were employed in construction work by the Canadian Pacific railroad. He was killed on the track. His body was carefully prepared for the pyre and the other Sikhs went through their religious ceremonies while it was being consumed. Later some of the bones were gathered up to be sent to Amritsar, India, to the widow and father of the dead man. The remaining bones were then taken down to the riverside and flung into the water with more religious rites.—Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

How Flowers Were Named.

It is interesting to know how certain flowers got their names. Many were named after individuals. For instance, fuchsias were so called because they were discovered by Leonard Fuchs. Dahlias were named for Andrew Dahl, who brought them from Peru. "The camelia was so called for a missionary named Kamel, who brought some magnificent specimens of the flower to France from Japan. He called it the rose of Japan, but his friends changed it to camelia. Magnolias were named in honor of Prof. Magnol de Montpellier, who first brought the beautiful trees to France from America and Asia. Because they tremble with the wind is the meaning of anemones. The Latin word to wash is lavare and lavender received its name because the Romans put the flowers into the water when they wished to perfume their hands."

Insect Processions.

Among the curious sights sometimes witnessed by entomologists are the "processions" formed by the larvae of a moth inhabiting pine trees in some parts of France. They march in single file, and the leader spins a thread which is added to by its followers. A procession consisting of 114 of these larvae was seen last April in the woods near Areachon. The processions are formed both at night, when the creatures make excursions from their nest to feed on the young leaves, and in the daytime, when they descend to the ground to seek a place in the sand where they may burrow and pass to the pupa stage. A kind of fly was observed attacking the procession above mentioned, to lay its eggs in the marching larvae.

Spotting a Headache.

"You've got a pretty bad headache, sir, haven't you?" asked the barber, giving a dry shampoo.
"That's just what's bothering me," replied the man in the chair. "But how did you know?"
"Tell it by my wrists and hands," explained the barber. "You and I are what they call magnetic mediums. And the electricity in my fingers takes the pain out of your head. But I get it. That's why I know. My hands are aching now. I don't often strike a customer like you, however, or I'd have to go out of business. I'll bet my arms ache for a half hour after you're gone."

CHARACTER IN FACE

READING OF THE FEATURES NOW
AN EXACT SCIENCE.

Temperament and Disposition of Individuals Plainly Shown, According to Woman Who Has Studied Subject.

The face as a map of character and disposition is the subject of an elaborate study by an English woman. She holds that the reading of the features can be reduced to an exact science.

There is an elaborate classification of eyes. Among the broad deductions is the dictum that dark eyes invariably indicate a strong, passionate nature, while light blue ones show a calculating, cool and resolute character.

Light brown eyes are signs of intelligence, fancy, fickleness in love and a rapidly fluctuating temperament. A sure indication of oratorical gift is projecting eyes and they also, betoken literary skill in the use of language.

A strongly developed nose is a mark of superior endowments. The owner of a big nose has more energy than the owner of a small one.

The nostrils also have their significance. Large nostrils indicate courage; little ones, cowardice. Long narrow ones show activity and bodily vigor. Broad nostrils opening toward the side show a predilection for horses.

Month and lips are full of suggestiveness. The man with a hanging underlip is apt to lack perseverance and concentration of purpose. The modest individual's lower lip is habitually pressed close against the upper lip at the center.

The chin and lower jawbone are important indices of character. True love is evident in a face in which the jawbone broadens clear back to the level of the wisdom teeth. This is true, both of men and women.

The youth who seeks an amiable spirit in his sweetheart must choose a girl with gently curving lower lips and full and well rounded chin; her eyes must be soft and brown. If he desires great constancy, he must look carefully to the spread of her lower jaw. Economy is promised by a widening of the nose just above the wings of the nostrils.

On the other hand, the young woman who desires an industrious husband should choose a man with long upper lip. If she desires even good temper in her spouse, she had best choose one with round face and curly hair.

How Birds Learn to Sing.

Do young birds learn their songs by direct imitation of their parents or is the power of song an innate quality? Some observations made by W. H. Hudson on a species of tinamou (Rhyncotus rufescens) throw some light on the question. This species has a peculiar and characteristic song or call of its own, and according to Mr. Hudson's observations, it does not require to learn it. A young bird was taken from the nest when just breaking the shell and brought up in a house where it could never have had the chance of hearing its parents. Yet long before it was full grown it would retire to a dark corner of the room and give its characteristic song in great perfection. Here the song must have been innate. The experiments of Hon. Daines Barrington, in which various species were reared under linens, and learned and sang the lullaby song instead of their own, suggest, on the other hand, that the young bird learns by direct imitation.

Trees a Buried Treasure.

Pirate hoards of Spanish doubloons are not the only buried wealth one may seek with spade and pick. A wonderful relic of the past has just been brought to light in Peterborough, England, in the discovery of a buried forest.

At a depth of seven feet have been found a number of oak trees which have been covered for some 2,000 years. Most of the trees are almost perfect in condition, and are being sold to furniture manufacturers and others.

Altogether about 80 trees have been raised, and hundreds more are left in the ground, untouched at a depth of five or six feet. In nearly all the trees the roots are found attached. The wood is extremely hard, and can be worked only by machinery, as it turns the edge of an ax.—London Chronicle.

Cheap Recreation.

H. O. Havemeyer, the famous head of the American sugar industry, said of a muckraking magazine article:

"Articles such as this don't impress one with their sincerity or their justice. Reading them, one is reminded of the rich old woman who said to her daughter:

"Isn't it dull and stupid?"
"Dull and stupid is no word for it," the daughter answered. "I am bored to death."

"The mother yawned."
"Ting for the cork," she said, "We'll give her a regular good scolding—just to kill time."

Easy to Tell the Difference.

"Edie," said Margie, who was laboriously spelling words from a first reader, "how can I tell which is a 'd' and which is a 'b'?"
"Why, replied Edie, wisely, 'the 'd' has its tummy on its back.'—Harper's Weekly.

THE FAMILY BIBLE MISSED.

Individual Records Are No Longer Kept with Exactness.

The family Bible, with its genealogical record, served a useful purpose in its day," said the librarian, "and I don't see that, with all our boasted advance in civilization, we have developed anything quite to take its place. Of course, nowadays, cities and towns pride themselves on the accuracy of their vital statistics, and we have whole libraries of genealogical works—dry enough most of them are, too. But the individual family record, such as was kept a few generations ago, is very decidedly missing, and it's a pity that such is the case.

"For one thing, the list of births, marriages and deaths that were kept in the ponderous volumes of Holy Writ operated to keep the members of the family close to one another; it was, in a way, a central point, valuable for sentimental reasons as well as for reasons more distinctly utilitarian. As scribe, succeeded scribe, the family continuity was emphasized and the entries were significant of the growth of a clanish feeling, which is too little in evidence at the present time. There are not, I venture to say, very many people in this year of grace who know anything or care anything about their relatives further removed than the degree of first cousinship, and even first cousins are frequently out of mind."

Of course, our tendencies are responsible largely for this state of affairs, but I often wish that we had reminders of our kin, such as were furnished by the family Bible of past days, with their direct personal testimony, amounting to messages from parents to children. Whenever I see one of these pages, filled with careful entries—entries made in joy and in sorrow, in the confidence of pride of life or by the trembling fingers of old age, it seems to me that we have lost something in our hurried existence that is to be regretted. We can go to the city or town clerk or, perhaps, to the public library for information as to our ancestry or our relatives, but this is a rather cold and formal method of procedure. Certainly, we do not find in official records and in books the handwriting of our forebears."

Tillman Is Identified.

Senator Tillman tells a story on himself as to how he was identified by a post office money order clerk when he first arrived at the capital city.

After being in the city a few days he dropped in at the post office to cash a money order.

"Do you know any one here who could identify you?" asked the clerk.

"Well, no," the senator answered. "Is that necessary? I am Hon. Tillman of South Carolina."

The clerk smiled, then asked the senator if he didn't have some letters or papers that would make him known to the post office authorities.

The senator had on a new suit that morning, and had neglected to transfer his letters, but he had his pocket-book with him. Digging down in his trousers pocket, he drew forth his wallet and proceeded to search for an article of identification, but could find nothing but a small photograph of himself.

"This will do, I suppose," he said, handing it to the money order clerk.

"Why, sure. That's you, all right," remarked the man behind the counter, handing over the cash.—Rochester Herald.

Draw Lots for Homes.

Houses are in great demand in Buckingham, England, but owing to the high price of land and the taxes building operations are limited. Recently half a dozen new houses were erected, and the applicants received a circular from the agents, of which the following is a copy: "With reference to your application to become tenant of one of the new houses, we beg to say that the number of applications we have received (all of which we would readily comply with if we had vacant houses for them) renders the task of selection so difficult that the owners have decided that the lots shall be drawn for. If, therefore, you wish to take part in this, please attend at our office at six o'clock this evening, or send a trustworthy person with written authority to draw for you. In the event of your being successful in the drawing, no tenancy will be created until the agreement has been signed."

The House of Cornelle.

The house in which Cornelle lived at Rouen, and where he composed the "Cid," "Polyeucte," "China," and nearly all his beautiful plays, is for sale for $9,000, and a proposal has been made to open a public subscription for its purchase and preservation as an historical monument.

For the last 100 years periodical attempts have been made to secure it for the state, but always without success. In 1802 Napoleon himself took an interest in the question and urged the mayor to find the means for its purchase.

Cornelle, it is said, wrote most of his plays in the room adjoining the bar, and the jokes, noise and revel of the guests, it is added, used to be quite an inspiration to him. After 200 years the bar is still frequented by merry drinkers.

A "Stick" Man.

GLUED THEM DOWN

HOW A SKIPPER SAVED HIS SHIP
FROM SAVAGES.

South Sea Island Natives Were Decidedly Up Against It When They Mixed Things with Capt. McCabe.

"It was when I was trading around the South sea islands that I had a narrow escape from a band of savages that were going to take my ship," said Capt. McCabe, the veteran sailor who has now settled ashore to pass his days in leisure, to a Seattle Post-Intelligencer man. "It came near having a serious ending for me, but I came out ahead after all."

"I was sailing in a pretty little schooner, the Mattie W., and we had a general cargo for trading. Setting on deck were about 20 cases of a glue that was never known to let go, but we couldn't sell a bit of it."

"Well, we got down to Millecollo, one of the group of the New Hebrides, and there we anchored in Manley bay. The snowy sand of the beach was shaded by waving palms and the sheltered waters of the bay were warm and as clear as crystal. We lay there for a week resting up and cleaning up the ship. We had been trading for almost a year then and there was nothing left but the glue and that was piled alongside the companion way."

"Well, one afternoon I let all the crew go ashore, and they were inland or away swimming in the clear water. I lay down to have a snooze. Suddenly I was awakened by a sharp jolt and all around me were South sea savages. They were armed with spears, bows and arrows and stone tomahawks. Their actions were hostile and I saw right away that I was up against it. I was alone on the vessel with all these armed heathens."

"Just then I happened to touch one of those glue boxes and in a flash an idea came to me. There was a large bunch standing near the main life rail and I grabbed five bottles and threw them at that crowd of savages one after the other. The bottles were thin glass and every one broke. Then, before the savages could recover their wits, I started throwing more. The glass would break and the glue ran all over them. When they tried to walk the glass would cut their feet and in a few minutes I had that whole crowd of savages glued to the deck unable to move. The glue hardened almost instantly on touching the air and this was what saved me."

"When I saw that they were all caught I signaled for the crew to return and then we weighed anchor and put off for Charlotte, in the Gilbert islands, where there were laborers wanted. I wasn't engaging in the slave trade, mind you, because these natives had come on board of their own free will and hadn't left."

"At Charlotte a planter offered to pry those savages loose from the deck and give $1,000 to boot, and I let him do it. That planter also took all the rest of the glue that we had."

"That was one of the most fortunate voyages that ever I made."

Her Probable Reason.

"Day before yesterday, right out in front of the hotel, here," said the landlord of the tavern at Polkville, Ark., "a nice-looking grass-widow met a fellow that had been going with her some, and fired three shots at him, one of which tore off considerable of his south ear as he was rapidly going east. I was settin' on the porch at the time, and saw it all, and—"

"Great Scott!" ejaculated the washing-machine agent, pricking up his ears eagerly, "unless it is a matter that you don't care to discuss, I wish you would tell me what, in your opinion, was the lady's reason for such an act?"

"Well, I reckon," was the ingenuous reply, "that she was mad at him. Of course, she mightn't have been—you can't tell much about women, you know—but that's the way it looked to me."—Tom P. Morgan in Smart Set.

Children and the Home.

"Children," said Judge McGwen at a dinner in Chicago, "are the great home builders. The lack of children means unhappiness, divorce. In the majority of the divorce suits that I pass on—and I pass on 100 a month—the couples are between 30 and 40 years of age, and childless. So children should be prized and cherished, despite their faults. Faults they have, I will admit. Only the other day I heard of a little girl, who, lurching out, was detected in the act of examining a large yellow handkerchief of Spanish omelet into the pocket of her pink frock."

"Why, you little pig," exclaimed her mother, "what on earth are you about? Put that back on your plate at once. Why, I never heard of such a thing. What on earth do you mean by it?"

"It is so good, mummy," the child explained, "I just thought I'd take a piece home to our cook for a pat-tern."

Different.

"My wife simply pelted me with beautiful flowers when I came home from the club last night."

"How nice!"

"Not much. They were all in flower pots."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

CARAVANS OF THE DESERT.

Gold Hunters and Consumptives Found Traveling Side by Side.

Ever journeying across the desert sands and climbing the arid peaks and foothills of the far southwest are two caravans—one seemingly rugged and healthy, though afflicted with a disease called goldomania, the other emaciated by the great white plague.

One is scarcely more optimistic than the other; one procession seeks a glittering yellow dust that means riches, the other a more precious thing—health. Though the trail may be long and the water holes infrequent; though the desert sun may be blistering and the tongue swollen with thirst, though the mountains may be steep and the path strewn with cacti, there is the glittering substance in the sand a little farther on for the argonaut; a lease of life at the horizon, when the red desert sun announces the dawn of another day, for the white plague's victim.

To many seeking their wanted vigor the hope that ever carries them onward is sometimes as futile as the race after the will-o'-the-wisp that lures the argonaut.

But the procession moves on and on; the pilgrims can not leave the sands until the mountain air and sunshine have healed the scars made by death's chief ally.

The main trail of the weak-lunged leads from Pecos to Yuma. For more than 1,000 miles prospector and plague-ridden traverse its tortuous course. In the caravan seeking gold nearly all are poor. In the caravan exiled and fighting for health there are rich and poor, high and low, democratic and fraternal in their life and expectancy.

To some this hope is as uncertain of realization as the prospector's pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. But many who have early joined the pilgrims, after years of travel by day under the scorching sun and sleep by night in the pure air of the mountain top, and their allotted exile and return to the old home 1,000 or more miles distant.

But the ranks are soon recruited. And some there are who must travel along the great highway until the end. Oftentimes the bones of prospector and plague-ridden are found bleaching in the canyon. The skeleton hand of one is outstretched up the hillside, where others reach the goal—and gold; the bones of the goal—and gold; the bones of the goal—and gold.

Quick Thought Saved Ship.

The Russian war frigate Olaf, prior to the outbreak of the war with Japan, which had accompanied the yacht of the czarowitz to Copenhagen, was lying at anchor among hundreds of other ships in the harbor, when a fire was discovered in a coal cellar below, which was only a few feet from the powder magazine. There was no time to put out the fire before it could reach the magazine, and an explosion of the large stores of cartridges and gunpowder contained in it probably would have destroyed not only the Olaf and the surrounding ships, but part of Copenhagen itself.

Capt. Rehlhuder, the commander of the Olaf, saw at once that the only thing to be done to prevent a catastrophe was to sink the ship. After sending away the crew, with the ship's papers, cash boxes and most valuable instruments in boats, he ordered the carpenters and engineers to make a leak in the vessel, and half an hour afterward she sank in shallow water.

Next day she was raised again and sent off for repairs.

The court-martial unanimously expressed the highest praise of the conduct of the captain and his subordinates. The emperor appointed him his aide-de-camp, which is one of the highest honors conferred on Russian naval officers, and the officers and men received gratuities from the emperor's privy purse.—Sunday Magazine.

Nervous Bridegrooms.

"Bridegrooms are sometimes nervous; brides never," said the clergyman.

"A young butcher during his wedding ceremony got horribly tangled up with an unlighted cigar. He found himself, in his nervousness, with the cigar in his left hand when the solemn rite began. To put the ring on the bride's finger he hurriedly transferred the cigar to his right hand. When the right hand came into play, in his confusion he stuck the cigar in his mouth. With both hands occupied he looked at me helplessly when next he had to speak. I took the cigar from his pale lips and put it in his pocket for him."

"One young man was so nervous when I married him that, instead of saying, 'I John, take thee, Mary, to be my lawful wedded wife,' he said, loud enough to be heard all over the church: 'I, Mary, take thee, John, to be my lawful wedded wife.'"

Anxious to Oblige.

The manager of a telephone exchange recently gave employment as an operator to a young woman whose previous employment had been in a department store. The girl seemed so bright and willing and possessed such a clear and distinct voice that the manager resolved to give her a trial.

The newcomer, who was all amiability and willingness, rapidly learned her new duties, but one day an incident occurred that betrayed her department store training.

In answer to a ring she had asked sweetly: "Number, please?"

"Let me have 325," said the patron.

"I am sorry that 325 is busy just now," said the girl, "but I can let you have 323 or 326."

THERE IS NO RING

James L. Ford, writing in the April number of Appleton's Magazine, takes a rather optimistic view of the American drama. He denies the oft-repeated statement that there is a "ring," a sort of play writers' trust, which prevents those outside the charmed circle from gaining a hearing. Good plays, he assures us, will always find acceptance and managers and actors are constantly searching for plays of the right character.

There are few dramatic critics as able or as well informed as Mr. Ford and a statement from him carries weight. There has been a suspicion that it was very hard for a young man or woman without unusual influence to get even a hearing from the men in power in the dramatic world. It is encouraging to be told that the right sort of play, from whatever source it may come, is sure to be eagerly received.

Neither is originally frowned upon, as we have at times been led to believe. Plays which depart from the beaten path are welcomed both by the men who manage and the men who interpret them. Actors and managers like new ideas and new methods and the playwright who has something out of the ordinary to offer will be given a chance to make good.

Mr. Ford does not deny that there have been many conspicuous failures in the play writing field, but the fault, he insists, lies always with the ambitious writer himself. There are many youths who, carried away by the stories of the great sums of money made by successful playwrights, attempt to emulate the men and women who have won fame and fortune. With no talent for the production of plays, they inevitably fail; but, unable to believe that they are entirely lacking in ability for the work they have undertaken, they blame an imaginary ring. In like manner, the unsuccessful story writer declares that there is a conspiracy of editors against him.

Says Mr. Ford:

"To the tolling thousands who go about bewailing their inability to obtain a production, or even a respectful hearing, for their original dramas, has come the astounding news that before the present theatrical season was fairly under way, three new and unknown playwrights had succeeded in breaking into the 'ring' that is supposed to control the destinies of our stage, and in reaching the popular heart with three novel and admirable native dramas. Surprising as this is, the success of the three plays is all the more astonishing when we consider the unusual sources from which they sprang. One is the work of a professional press agent and dramatic critic and another that of a poet and college professor, almost the last person in the world to look for an acting play. The third, still more wonderful to relate, when we consider the quality of the workmanship, comes from the brain of a professional actress."

It is particularly gratifying to note that the greatest successes of the American stage this year were the work of native writers and dealt with various phases of American life. It is evident that the future is full of promise for the native drama and that success awaits the young playwright of talent.

BIRD'S EYE VIEWS.

A Dramatic Treat

Love and lies form the world drama from the time of Adam and Eve. Love and lies form the base for Mildred Holland's splendid new play, "A Paradise of Lies," which will be given its first production in this city at Music Hall. The play is by Matthew Barry and its scenes are laid in Italy at the end of the romantic eighteenth century. The action carries the characters from the scenes of rustic peasant life to the palaces of the Mediterranean.

The prolog is an episode which of-

for the further exploiting of this clever dramatist's peculiar and popular comedy eccentricities. Surrounding the big clever company that surrounds him, George Sidney himself holds a magnetic relation to the public unlike that of any other fun-maker.

There are many musical features in "Busy Izzy's Vacation," many of which were written especially for the comedy, and the following may be mentioned: "On Old Broadway," "Clancy," "Bronco Buster Jim," "Twas Busy Izzy," "Summer Days," "Animal Filtration," "Going Away to California," "Moony Time," "Some-

The tragedy of the life of this castaway is the theme of the play. As Lolita, the castaway grown to the divinity of womanhood, Miss Holland dominates the entire piece.

Her engagement in this city promises to be the treat of the dramatic year.

Imitable George Sydney. The imitable and unique George

LIBERATE 4000 LOBSTERS.

The U. S. Fish Commissioners Liberate Large Number of Seed Lobsters Off the Coast of Maine.

The fish commissioner's steamer, the Gannett, was here on Saturday and liberated 4000 seed lobsters between Wells' Beach and Whales' Back light-

Carrie Webber in "Busy Izzy's Vacation."

Sidney, the fun purveyor with his big musical company, will be at Music Hall next Friday evening for the benefit of Portsmouth Lodge of Elks.

This year a second edition of "Busy Izzy's Vacation" has been prepared house. The lobsters were brought up to this section of the coast from Boothbay Harbor, where they had been at the fish-hatchery, and had been stripped of her eggs.

This is the first trip of the steamer this way and the first time that the government has ever liberated so many lobsters. It is on the new line of striped seed lobsters, for which the fishermen are paid so much and then releasing the lobsters off the coast to breed again.

CUT HIS THUMB.

Frank Horrocks, clerk at the store of Moses Brothers, severely cut the thumb of his left hand early Saturday morning while chopping wood, at his home in Kittery. He was attended by Dr. Shapleigh.

WILL REDUCE PRICE

Gas To Be $1.35 Per Cubic Foot

The Portsmouth Gas Company is considering the feasibility of supplying the town of Kittery with gas for illuminating and heating purposes, and representatives of the company will at once investigate the problem. The company will also, on and after May first, make a flat rate to $1.35 net per 1000 cubic feet for gas, whether the same be used for illuminating or heating purposes, a reduction of 15 cents a thousand. The present rate is $1.50.

The company will maintain in each dwelling house hereafter but a single meter but customers may have either the regular style meter or the prepayment meter, as they desire.

LOCAL PROBATE COURT BUSINESS

At the last session of probate court, held at Exeter, administration was granted in the estates of George H. Abbott, Portsmouth, George P. Abbott, administrator, and Adeline P. Kent, Portsmouth, Elsie J. Keayes, administratrix. Accounts were settled in the estate of J. Disco, Jenness, Rye. Inventories were approved in the estates of Emma F. Hilton, Rye, and Susan W. Lighthouse, Portsmouth. Receipts were filed in the estates of Fred L. George, Portsmouth, and J. Disco, Jenness. Reports were filed in the estate of Elizabeth M. Bailey, Portsmouth. Notice was filed by the commissioner of the estate of Augustus N. Wells, Portsmouth.

Police Inspector Thomas Quinn of Portland, who was here on Sunday, was formerly a resident of this city. His father was for years master in the Frank Jones Brewery many years ago.

A GRUESOME FIND

Frank Manson Finds Leg Of Man At Great Bay

HAD BEEN IN WATER MONTHS—MEDICAL REFEREE LANCE CALLED

Frank Manson of Stratham, while hunting along the shore of Great Bay on Saturday, made the gruesome find of the bones of a man's leg. The bones were bleached out by the action of the water, but the foot was incased in the remains of a patent leather shoe, and there was more of it. It was lying on the shore of the Bay near the farm of William R. Weeks, in Greenland, and Mr. Manson notified Mr. Weeks.

Medical Referee A. J. Lance was called and he visited the scene and viewed the find. There was no possible way that the bones could be identified. The bones were from the knee down, and the foot was incased in what appeared to be a patent leather shoe. Dr. Lance was of the opinion that the leg had been in the water for two or three months, and that the man was from twenty to forty years of age.

How the leg got to the shore, who the unfortunate man was and the manner of his death is shrouded in mystery. It may have come down from one of the rivers emptying into the bay or it may have come in from the Piscataqua river with the tide. There was no way of telling how the leg became detached from the body, but a thorough search of the shore about where the find was made, was unsuccessful so far as locating the body.

At the direction of Medical Referee Lance the bones were buried near where they were found.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Margaret Lenox Pender.

The death occurred early Saturday morning of Mrs. Margaret Lenox Pender, one of the oldest residents of Portsmouth, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary E. Sherburne, at the age of eighty-seven years, ten months and twenty-eight days. She was a native of Paisley, Scotland, and had been a resident of this country seventy-five years and of this city over sixty years.

She is survived by one son, ex-Mayor John Pender of this city, and three daughters, Mrs. Eliza J. Stearns of Boston, Mrs. M. Isabelle Holmes of Providence, and Mrs. Sherburne of this city, with whom she lived.

Miss Grace F. Leavitt.

Miss Grace F. Leavitt, daughter of J. F. Leavitt of Middle street, died on Saturday at the Homeopathic Hospital in Boston, where she had been ill for two weeks with typhoid pneumonia. Miss Leavitt was a teacher in the kindergarten at Kingham, Mass., and when she was taken sick she was removed to the hospital in Boston and was thought to be almost well enough to leave when there was a sudden turn for the worse.

She was born in this city and was forty years and two months old. She was a graduate of the local High school and for twenty years has been a kindergarten teacher. At one time teaching the Summer Street kindergarten in this city. She was a woman of rare charms who had a host of friends with whom her cheerful smile and sunny disposition will always be a pleasant memory.

She leaves her father, two sisters, Misses Laura and Martha Leavitt, of this city, and one brother, Frank Leavitt.

Miss Catherine Mahoney.

Miss Catherine Mahoney of Greenland, died at the Notre Dame Hospital, Manchester, on Saturday morning at the age of 78 years. She was for a great many years a resident of Greenland, and was a sister of the late Captain Dennis Mahoney of that town, with whom she made her home until a few months ago. Two nephews and a niece are the only relatives. The body was brought here on Saturday and the funeral services held on Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. Fr. Doe of the Church of the Immaculate Conception officiating. Interment was in the St. Mary's cemetery under the direction of O. W. Ham.

A MERRY GO-ROUND

That is What Portsmouth Man's Auto Became in Nashua

The four Portsmouth men who attended the Masonic gathering at Nashua on Fast day and who made the trip in the automobile owned by one of the party are receiving many congratulations on their safe arrival home.

It was the ride of their lives and every man got his money's worth. All of them are now studying a map of New Hampshire roads and are wondering how they came to chafe at the rate of forty miles an hour and finally land in Derry.

Three of the party are not on speaking terms with the fourth man, who gave up in despair and wanted them to camp under the machine until daylight. When is an auto not an auto? When it is a whirl-a-gig.

NEWS FOR SPORTLOVERS

Ralph Glaze pitched great ball for the Boston Americans on Saturday and it looks very much as if the boy from Dartmouth would make good as a big league twirler.

The East Manchester team of the New Hampshire-Vermont League defeated St. Anselm's College team on Saturday, four to two. Jim McGrady pitched for East Manchester and was at first hit hard, but pulled himself together after the first few innings. Tim Hurley, who is to captain the league team, played in this game with his fellow collegians. Greenwood, who has played in this city, covered right field for East Manchester.

The High School team will play a practice game with Trapp Academy at The Plains on Wednesday and on Saturday will cross bats with Sanborn Seminary at Kingston.

In a juvenile game at Langdon Park on Saturday, the Kiwaws defeated the Navajoes, twenty to fifteen. The batteries were Jenkins and Cah for the Kiwaws and Jones and Pivitski for the Navajoes.

The Phillips Exeter Academy team pulled out a victory over the University of Maine on Saturday in the last three innings. At the end of the sixth the score was seven to nothing against the academicians.

Dartmouth defeated Yale in the two mile college relay race at Philadelphia on Saturday, but was forced to yield first place to Columbia, though by a narrow margin.

The Dartmouth-Brown break is most unfortunate and the charges of unfair treatment made by the Brown authorities do not make pleasant reading for Dartmouth admirers. It is impossible to avoid the suspicion, however, that Brown is trying to justify an ill-considered action.

Farmington High School defeated Dover High at Dover on Saturday, six to four.

Shaw of Dartmouth took first place in the hurdles in the Philadelphia Intercollegiate athletic meet on Saturday and equalled the record in doing so.

There is an unusual amount of good baseball material in Portsmouth this year, but, unfortunately, no enclosed field where a team can play.

A four club league, with teams in Somersworth, Dover, South Berwick and Sanford, has been organized. Such leagues have been formed before, but they have not often lasted through a season.

OBSEQUIES

The funeral of Dennis Shea was held at nine o'clock this (Monday) morning from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Rev. Fr. Walter Dee conducting requiem mass. The body was placed in the receiving tomb of Undertaker William P. McKell.

Funeral services over the body of Mrs. Margaret Lenox Pender were held this (Monday) afternoon at half past two o'clock from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Sherburne on Islington road. Rev. Lucius H. Thayer was the officiating clergyman. Burial was in South cemetery, under the direction of Undertaker O. W. Ham.

The funeral of Benjamin R. Frisbee, who died in Boston last week, and was brought to Kittery Point on Sunday, were held from the Free Will Baptist church, Rev. Mr. Dragoon, pastor of the Free Will Baptist church, in this city, officiating. Interment was in the church cemetery under the direction of O. W. Ham.

ARRESTED HERE

Joseph Lafrance And Joseph Valliere Of Somersworth

ALLEGED LARCENY OF SUIT CASE FROM PORTLAND DEPOT

Joseph Lafrance, age 18 years, and Joseph Valliere, age 19 years, belonging in Somersworth, were arrested from the early morning Pullman on Sunday by Officer Quinn and held for the Portland officers.

The boys were arrested at the request of the Portland police, who telegraphed the description of a suit case that they had taken from the smoking room in the Portland depot, but there was no description of the boys. Officer Quinn was notified and he found the boys in the depot when the Pullman arrived. They had stolen a ride from Portland on the front end of the train and had jumped off as soon as the train stopped, only to be arrested. They had the suit case with them and admitted that they had stolen it.

They were taken to the police station and on Sunday evening, Police Inspector Quinn of Portland, arrived here and took the boys back to Portland. He states that the dress suit case belonged to a man named A. W. Lee of Worcester, who was about to take the train. He stepped into the smoking room and left his suit case on the floor for a few minutes, and when he returned the case was gone. The boys claim that they were working in Lewiston and were on their way back to Somersworth, when they saw a chance to lift the suit case, and did it.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.

How To Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours, a sediment or settling indicates condition of the kidneys; if it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, cures every ailment of the kidneys, pain in the back, kidney liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, without cost, by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Birmingham, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Birmingham, N. Y.

SHUN HOODOO DESK

CLERKS AT WASHINGTON ARE SUPERSTITIOUS.

No One Cares to Work at Places That Seem Menaced by Misfortune—Doorkeeper's Post an Example.

A series of misfortunes involving dismissals, resignations and deaths in the executive departments in Washington often develops what is known as the "hoodoo desk," says the Washington Post.

A desk comes under suspicion after a dismissal of two from the service or after several transfers or resignations, and if there should occur several deaths among the occupants of the desk in the course of a year or two it is designated as the hoodoo desk, and no one in that room cares to do clerical work at it. In a room filled with clerks the hoodoo desk is easily recognized, for it is most generally occupied with the surplus books and general litter of the daily routine work.

The desk may remain unoccupied sometimes for months, until some new clerk comes into the room and is assigned to it, provided there is no other vacant desk in the room. Bureau officials generally avoid assigning a new clerk to the hoodoo desk if it can be done. In fact, the desk is apt to remain without an occupant until radical changes in the personnel of the office cause its reputation to be forgotten.

In one department there is a hoodoo desk from which four clerks have died in the last two years, two have resigned, one has been dismissed and three have been transferred. Therefore, no one cares to occupy it now. A $1,200 clerk said several days ago, in a half-hearted way, that he would move from his present room and try it for awhile if they would promote him to $1,800. He said afterward, however, that he was merely joking.

But there are other hoodoo desks in Washington. Some years ago a doorkeeper's post in the war department building came under the ban and it was a source of considerable annoyance to the officials.

At this particular door the first misfortune was death, the second dismissal, the third holder of the post lost his wife by death and finally fell and broke a limb, and the fourth appointee in succession lost a child and then resigned. This resignation kept the place vacant for a time, as no one could be induced to take it. The place had to be filled by calling on the civil-service commission for some one from the outside.

Perhaps the most conspicuous case of a hoodoo desk in any one of the Washington executive departments was that in which a succession of misfortunes came to private secretaries of one of the assistant secretaries. Several deaths and other misfortunes made the place dreaded.

Unfortunate Twins.

There is a colored woman who resides in one of the courts in the northwest section of Washington, and who has a penchant for bestowing upon her children unique Christian names. She has named one of her girls Ambrosia and another Gymbeline, while her eldest boy bears the cognomen of Prince Edward. It recently occurred to her that "plekainny" would make a good prefix for her next girl, and she decided to apply it. But recently she became the mother of twin girls, and one of her friends called to see her and queried:

"Now, take you done got two gals; whichever you like, what name?"

"Well, Susanna, you know I've stuck on dat name Plekainny, and I've gwine to arrange it so's I can give it to my two twins. I've gwine to name one o' dem gals 'Pleke' and de other 'Ninny,' an' dat'll make de whole word 'Plekainny'."

Rumor Busy With Carlisle.

The Hon. John G. Carlisle, who has an intermittent residence in Washington with his daughter-in-law and granddaughter at his handsome home in K Street, presented to him years ago by his Kentucky admirers—does not deny the soft impeachment when faced with his projected marriage to the beautiful Mrs. Logan of Virginia, sister of the Hon. St. George Tucker, president of the Jamestown exposition. When asked directly, "Is it so?" Mr. Carlisle, the distinguished widower warily slips on a kindly mask of imperturbability and makes a reply of adroit noncommittalness. Hence—?

Will See All of America.

Secretary Taft may visit Alaska next fall. He is going to leave Washington for the Philippines about Sept. 1 and it is very likely that he will make a side trip to Alaska, sailing from Seattle for Manila after his return. Maj. Willis P. Richardson of the quartermaster general's department in making the effort to have the secretary of war make the Alaska visit, Mr. Taft would like to go very much and it is merely a question of time. When he has seen Alaska the secretary of war will have visited every dependency of the United States with the exception of Samoa.

Mrs. Longworth in Society.

Mrs. Alice Longworth is taking her place as a hostess in Washington society and her Tuesday at home are becoming one of the weekly features of the capital. It is an open secret that Mrs. Longworth has political ambitions for her husband and, perhaps, she is not far wrong in believing that one of the open doors to political preferment is to be found in the social observances for which she is so well fitted.

HELP FOR THE LOBSTERS.

Government Takes Steps to Prevent Their Extinction.

While the national government does not wish to molluscify the lobster, and would like to train him into an upright and self-reliant citizen, the fish commission is going to take the situation seriously in hand and begin the propagation of the crustacean on an extensive scale at a station in Boothbay, Me. An appropriation of $200,000 has been made for this purpose, and operations will be begun with 20,000 lobsters at the station this season. It is believed that 20,000,000 lobsters can be added to the invisible supply this year. Attention will be given to developing extra thick shells or a sting in the tail or some other method of defense from their natural marine enemies. One of the scientists has discussed the possibility of crossbreeding the lobster with the cuttlefish and developing an ink bag with which he could muddy the water and escape from his foes, though it may be decided to hybridize him with the flying fish and grow wings on his shoulders. Anyhow, the best that can be done will be done to keep up the supply of this toothsome univalve.

The development of the most luscious breeds will not be overlooked, and it is understood that a self-sacrificing squad of young government employees, analogous to Dr. Wiley's poison squad at the department of agriculture, will allow themselves to be experimented on with various culinary preparations, a la Neuberger, broiled live and chafing-dish steaks. The lobster has been more or less neglected up to date, but the fish commission is determined that this error shall be corrected in future if scientific common and a paternalistic government can do it.

HAVE NEW TEMPERANCE IDEA.

Washington Men Would Promote Drinking of Light Liquors.

In connection with the proposed prohibition crusade in several states, the statement was made recently that several Washington men are about to engage in a novel temperance movement, says the Washington Star. It is said they propose to form in all sections of the country societies, the members of which will be pledged to drink only light wines and beers, and to be moderate even in those indulgences. The promoters of this scheme claim that the evil of habitual drunkenness can only be cured by the use of lighter beverages, and base their claim on certain injunctions in the Bible, as well as on scientific reasons.

The claim is made that scientists have come to regard the moderate use of light wines and beers as beneficial in cases of dyspepsia. They point to the hospital records for evidence that the deaths as a result of alcoholism are in every instance caused by the excessive use of the heavier liquors, such as brandy, whisky, rum and gin. They also point to the infrequency of deaths from that cause in the beer and wine countries of Europe.

It is said that the first of these "temperance" societies may be established in Washington.

His Point Well Taken.

According to a story related by a representative from Tennessee, there was a negro who was elected to the legislature of Mississippi during reconstruction times. He was undeducated, but knew enough to vote with his party every time, and he picked up a few pointers on parliamentary law.

This negro was drawn on the jury of the circuit court. The docket was crowded and the court held until a late hour. One evening the colored juror was tired and hungry and did not relish the prospect of being kept from his supper. He astonished everybody by rising in his seat and exclaiming in a loud voice:

"May I please do sht, I moves you, sah, dat dis coht does now adjoun on till tomorrow mawnin'."

The judge was amazed and informed the able juror that court's never adjourn except on their own motion. "Dat's all right, sah," responded the parliamentary juror, "but, sah, yo' kaint deny dat a motion to adjoun an allow in order, sah."

Sightseers at Capital.

Washington is in proportion to its size, the leading rubberneck wagon town of the world. There seems to be a rubberneck wagon on every block of the town during all of the daylight hours. But there wouldn't be one if the proprietors depended upon Washingtonians for patronage.

It would probably be within the strictest boundaries of truthfulness to say that not one quarter of the white folks of Washington have yet been within the library of congress, which unblinded travelers call the most beautiful building in the world. Yet that building is crowded at all hours, up to 10 o'clock at night, with visitors from other places.

Up-to-Date Excuse.

Thomas Jones, a citizen of dusky hue, was in the dock at the police court at Washington a day or two ago to answer a charge of stealing an overcoat. It wasn't his overcoat, but he was charged with it.

"Why did you take it?" queried the judge as the prisoner was arraigned and, perhaps, pleaded guilty. "I cain't tell you, fo' sars, please yer mer, exceptin' the fact temporary insanity and the written law."

RICHEST ON EARTH

UNITED STATES THE MOST WEALTHY NATION.

Each Decade Shows Marvelous Advancement of Uncle Sam—Figures That Seem Enormous.

The total estimate of the value of the national wealth in 1904 was $107,104,192,410, according to a special report issued by the census bureau on wealth, debt and taxation. This represents an increase in the four-year period from 1900 to 1904 of $18,636,885,635.

This advance in national wealth has no parallel in the history of the United States except the decade from 1850 to 1860. In 1850, when the first estimates of the national wealth were made, the figures were only $7,135,780,228. The most potent cause for the increase in the nation's wealth from 1900 to 1904, it was stated, was the reaction from the low prices of the period of depression from 1893 to 1896. The annual increase of wealth per family from 1890 to 1904 was $182.

The various forms into which the nation's wealth is divided, with their valuations, are as follows:

Real property and improvements (taxed), $55,510,228,007; real property and improvements exempt, $8,831,244,570; live stock, $4,073,791,736; farm implements and machinery, $844,989,862; manufacturing machinery, tools and implements, $3,297,753,180; gold and silver coin and bullion, $1,998,693,303; railroads and their equipment, $11,244,752,000; street railways, $2,219,966,000; telegraph systems, $227,400,000; telephone systems, $586,840,000; Pullman and private cars, $123,000,000; shipping and canals, $46,489,804; privately owned water works, $276,000,000; privately owned central electric light and power stations, $582,551,105; agricultural products, $1,399,376,652; manufactured products, $7,409,291,668; imported merchandise, $495,543,685; mining products, $408,066,787; clothing and personal adornments, $2,500,000,000; furniture, carriages and kindred property, $6,750,000,000.

The total public indebtedness of continental United States in 1902 was $2,789,990,120 and the total per capita indebtedness was $35.50. The total indebtedness of the national government for the same year was $26,011,637 and the per capita indebtedness was $11.27. The indebtedness of the United States government is its gross indebtedness less cash in the treasury. The total indebtedness of continental United States in 1890 was $1,989,112,842, that of the national government was $851,912,752 and the per capita were $31.70 and $13.00, respectively. In 1902 the annual interest charge on the public debt of continental United States is shown to have been approximately $116,206,658 or an annual payment of $1.46 for each individual.

In Great Britain the per capita indebtedness of all classes, national and local, was 3.23 times that of the United States; in France, 4.80, and in Italy, 2.25.

The assessed valuation of property subject to ad valorem taxation has increased from 1850 to the present time, but it has not kept pace with the increase in the actual national wealth. The total assessed valuation of property in 1902 was $35,338,316,833, while in 1890 it was only $25,473,173,418. The estimated true value of all property in 1902 was $97,810,749,590, against $65,027,091,197 in 1890.

The total level of ad valorem taxes was in 1901 $724,730,529 and the tax rate per $100 of estimated true value 74 cents.

The net indebtedness of the country was slightly less at the close than at the beginning of the year. In the case of the national government, states and territories and counties the receipts exceeded the payments and at the close of the year these governments had smaller net indebtedness than at the beginning. In the case of minor civil divisions, and especially the large cities, the situation was reversed and the payments for expenditures exceeded the revenue receipts, causing an increase in net indebtedness.

Washingtonians Not Curious.

Very often in Washington during the season there are elaborate weddings at the fashionable churches. In other cities, New York, for example, squads of police have been detailed to keep back the curious women who bubble in front of the churches when these notable weddings are scheduled, for the purpose of catching a view of the bride's and bridesmaids' railments.

Washington women don't go near the churches at such times. "There is never any bother with crowds in front of the churches. When the bride and her women are in the very act of stepping from their carriages at a big wedding even the darkies on the street scarcely pause to have a look.

It isn't that rubbering is one of the seven deadly sins in that town, any more than it is anywhere else. They simply don't care in Washington, that's all.

Has Historic Flag.

Eben Appleton, of New York city, has in possession the "star-spangled banner" which flew over Fort Mifflin and which inspired Francis Scott Key to the composition of his national ode. It is his intention to take the flag to either one of the national museums at Washington or the Massachusetts Historical museum at Boston.

MADE A DOMESTIC STORM.

Mary's Report Called for Exercise of Much Diplomacy.

"You never can tell what is liable to happen to a chap these days," said a well-known man about town to the Star reporter, while sitting in the lobby of a certain hotel the other evening.

The divorced man who is married and has a very pretty home on Columbia Heights. "You see, it makes no difference what precautionary measures a fellow takes to avoid any of those little storms that are liable to come up in one's home despite the predictions of the weather bureau. My wife went to visit some friends of hers out at Hyattsville one afternoon recently, intending to stay three days, with the understanding that I was to join her there on the day before her return home. Well, on the morning of the day I was to go out there she discovered that she had given her old maid a neck pin I had either her or had left it at home. She thought that she may have left it on the mantelpiece in the sitting room, and being quite anxious about it she called up my house by phone. Of course, it was my luck to have come down town, and the call was answered by the maid."

"Mary," said the madame, "did you find anything when you cleaned up the sitting room this morning?"

"Mary's answer," said Mr. Man-about-town, "gave me a jolt that required diplomacy for settlement greater than that in the San Francisco-Japanese school middle."

"What did Mary say?" asked the Star man, drawing closer to the narrator.

"Why, she told the madame that she found eight corks, three packs of cards and a lot of poker chips on the floor!"—Washington Star.

Honored Gen. Grosvenor.

Gen. Grosvenor, of Ohio, is very proud of an incident which occurred in the closing hours of the last session of congress. Shortly before adjournment Capt. McGrew, chief of the capitol police force, met the venerable Ohio congressman in the rotunda and with every evidence of regret placed him under arrest. "I trust you will come peacefully," he said with great respect, "for I should much regret to use force." The congressman went along, half inclined to be amused, but nevertheless somewhat impressed. The two proceeded to the captain's office, where every member of the police force had assembled. Thorepman Capt. McGrew presented to the congressman a handsome watch and Masonic charm, delivering a pretty little speech. Gen. Grosvenor was visibly affected by the incident and was hardly able to express his thanks. A day or two later the captain received a long letter expressing the general's appreciation.

No Capital People Present.

The visitors' galleries of both the house and the senate are filled from day to day during congressional sessions almost exclusively by visitors of the Washington excursionist type. A veteran Washington correspondent, familiar with the restraint which enables the Washingtonians to remain away from the galleries of congress, won a little bit from a new correspondent a while ago.

He surveyed the crowd of persons in the gallery alongside the press gallery of the house, and then he observed to the new correspondent that there probably wasn't a solitary resident of Washington in the gallery. The new correspondent regarded that proposition as beyond belief. The little bit was made.

The doorkeeper of the visitors' gallery politely inquired of all of the people—124—as they passed out upon the adjournment if they were Washingtonians. There were no Washingtonians in the crowd and the old-time correspondent easily took down the bet.

Secretary Always at Hand.

Henry O. Weaver, private secretary to Secretary Cortelyou, is a veritable Adus Achilles in his chief. He has been with Mr. Cortelyou ever since the latter has been a member of the cabinet, first as secretary of the department of commerce and labor, then as postmaster general and now as secretary of the treasury. He accompanies his chief everywhere. Usually they lunch together and frequently at lunch the private secretary is seen to take out his notebook and scribble upon it as his chief talks in a low tone. It is believed that Mr. Cortelyou took from President McKinley the hint of the value of having his private secretary always in easy reach. When Mr. Cortelyou was secretary to Mr. McKinley the president had a habit of talking to him at leisure moments on subjects upon which the chief magistrate was preparing a speech or message and by this method the work of preparation was made less burdensome to both.

Privileged Youngster.

A rather ridiculous-looking female called at the White House and requested one of the big policemen to carry her card to the president, as she had business of importance. The officer was explaining that just then Mr. Roosevelt was busy when a sound like an Indian war whoop was heard at the door, through which burst a boy of about seven years. He was on roller skates and after crashing around the room for a minute or so he disappeared. "Outrageous!" exclaimed the elderly party. "Why did you not arrest that boy, officer?" "Madam," the youngster explained the bluecoat, "that youngster can do anything he wants in this building so far as I am concerned. He can tear it down without any interference from me. His name is Quentin Roosevelt."

BREAKFAST DISHES

ENGLISH WAFFLES AND CRUMPS ARE APPETIZING.

Will Be Found Good Change from the Hot Biscuits That Are the Staple of the American Table.

No American table is complete without hot bread or biscuit of some sort. Abroad one never sees them, as they are not thought to benefit the digestion. The English waffles and crumpets are the nearest approach to our hot cakes. When properly made there is nothing better. The following are two English recipes for making them:

Yorkshire Waffles.—Take three ounces and a half of flour, half an ounce of salt, one quart of water, one gill of yeast or its equivalent in a yeast cake dissolved in warm water; beat together for 20 minutes and then let them rise to the top of the bowl in which they have been mixed.

Beat them down a second time; turn them out on a bed of flour and with a knife and spoon make them up; when the iron is hot stir a little flour on it, which will turn brown.

Lay the waffles on it; when blistered on the top turn out; when brown on the other side they will be sufficiently baked.

Crumplets.—Beat two eggs light; mix with them one quart of warm milk and water, one large spoonful of yeast, beat in as much flour as will make them quite thick; have a brisk fire and the griddle hot; fill muffin rings with the mixture; when done on one side turn with a cake turner and brown on the other side. They are excellent toasted.

Cream Biscuits.—Sift two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one of salt into one quart of flour; cut into little pieces through the flour one half pound or one cupful of butter, and mix lightly with milk.

Roll out again and cut with a small cutter; bake in a hot oven. These are excellent for luncheon or for picnics.

Alabama Rice Bread.—Put two cupfuls of boiled rice into a bowl, add two cupfuls of milk and the well-beaten yolks of two eggs; stir in gradually one cupful of flour.

Add one-half teaspoonful of salt, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, and the whites of the eggs beaten to a stiff froth; turn into a well greased shallow pan and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

Egg Bread, a Southern Recipe.—Two cupfuls of buttermilk, two eggs, one-quarter teaspoon baking powder, one teaspoon soda, one cup cornmeal, one teaspoonful of salt, mix into a batter which will be quite thin.

Put a pan on the fire with one tablespoonful of lard, let it melt, run the lard all around the pan, pour the melted lard into the batter, and stir until well mixed, pour the batter into the hot pan and let it stand on the fire until it curls away from the sides, then put into the oven and bake until brown.

Potato Bread.—Sift four pounds of flour into a pan, boil one pound of potatoes, skin and mash them through a colander, mix this with a small quantity of milk and warm water, stir the flour with a wooden spoon.

Add salt, beat well and add half a compressed yeast cake, make the dough of the consistency of ordinary bread and set it to rise. Bake in small loafs.

Rye Pancakes with Maple Syrup.—One pint sour milk, one tablespoonful saleratus, one tablespoonful sugar, one tablespoonful molasses, little salt, one egg. Add one-half rye and one-half wheat flour to make it the consistency of a thick batter. Drop by spoonfuls, and fry in deep fat. Serve with maple syrup or with wine and sugar.

Clothes-Horse Hint.

Where there is very little room the following suggestion will make a very good substitute for that domestic animal, the clothes-horse, which is easily carried out by the home carpenter. From the carpenter obtain several dowels, or white, round sticks. At the hardware store get some brackets. Place the brackets in a manner to bring the dowels across a corner of the kitchen, and on them the clothes may be hung in air. During the week the dowels may be removed and put away in a corner, or may be used to hang dish towels to dry, says Women's Life. This arrangement does away with the dangling line that is of great annoyance to the taller members of the family.

Stains on Tables.

If a whitish stain is left on a table by carelessly setting on a pitcher of hot water or a hot dish pour some lamp oil on the spot and rub it hard with a soft cloth, then pour on a little cologne water over the white mark and rub it dry with another cloth.

The water in which potatoes have been boiled is excellent for sponging out the dirt from silk. The stains of sea water on silk or any delicate material are very difficult to erase, and in some cases sponging with soft water will act well.

When cleaning stained knives take a piece of new potato, dip it in brick dust and scour the knives with it. In this way the most obstinate stains will be removed.

Turn Wall Paper.

When a hole has been made in the wall paper in moving a piece of furniture, if one has no paper like the one on the wall, a judicious use of water colors will work wonders. The torn paper should be first straightened as neatly as possible and glued down. Then touch up the vacant spaces and the seams with paints the color of the paper at that place, says Home Chat. The break will be almost invisible if the water colors are used carefully. Tiny tubes of water color paints can be bought at any artists' supplies shop.

VALUE OF FRUIT SOUPS.

Food Value in Dainty Dishes That May Be Served.

Mr. Riley M. Fletcher Berry, in his book, "Fruit Recipes" (Doubleday, Page & Co.), says that fruit soups are usually served cold—where convenient. They may be served hot or cold, but with this daintiness of service, however, it may be forgotten or not realized that such soups are not to the stomach as empty, introductory flourishes, whatever the intent. Fruit soups are foods, and as such are used in many countries by even the peasants, though they may lack delicate table appointments. It is true that a fruit may be used which it not of itself substantial (though the opposite may hold, as with prunes); but the sage, arrowroot, or tapioca used for thickening furnishes a certain amount of heat-producing material, and where wine is added this is increased, so it may readily be understood why, when used in quantity, such combinations may approach, of themselves, substantial meals, or why, even in small measure, fruit soups, with but slight additions of foods containing other balancing elements, may arrive at the right to be chief "dish" of a luncheon or light supper.

As a general rule, stewed fruit, passed through a sieve, may have added to it an equal quantity of water, and to each pint a heaping teaspoonful or scant dessert spoonful of sage, arrowroot (for which cornstarch may be substituted) or tapioca. Some instructors give the rule of a level tablespoonful of cornstarch to each pint of clear, pressed fruit juice, which, however, may be slightly diluted. The arrowroot or cornstarch is a quicker process, and should be dissolved till smooth in a little cold

APPETIZING HERBS

RECIPES BOTH PALATABLE AND

Dandelions Boiled with Bacon Make an Ideal Simple Dish—Dandelion Wine a Tonic That is of Value.

Dandelions Boiled with Bacon.—Clean thoroughly a-half peck dandelions and put over the fire with boiling water to cover. Cook ten minutes, drain, return to the pan and cover barely with fresh boiling water. Add one pound bacon, two onions chopped, a teaspoonful salt and a bit of red pepper. Cover and boil until tender and nearly dry. Take up the dandelions and mound on a hot dish, surrounded with a circle of the bacon sliced thin and serve with boiled potatoes. Dandelions are also tasty cooked with corn beef or tongue.

Dandelion Wine.—This wine is in great repute as a tonic. It is made from the blossoms alone, rejecting the stems, which would make the wine bitter. Put four quarts of the yellow petals in a kettle with a gallon of boiling water, cover and let them stand three days, stirring twice a day. Strain off the clear liquid, place in the kettle, with the thin yellow peel of one lemon and one orange, and the juice of both with three and a half pounds of sugar, and a half ounce ginger root. Place over the fire and boil slowly half an hour. Take off, and when cooled to lukewarm, spread a half cake of compressed yeast on a half slice toasted bread and add to the mixture. Let this stand in a warm place for two or three days, then put into a demijohn or cask (the wine must fill whatever vessel it is put in), and stand away in a warm place six weeks or more. Fill up occasionally with sweetened water, to make up for that lost in fermentation. When fermentation has stopped, close tightly, leave for three weeks, then bottle.

Watercress for Wit.—"Eat cress and learn wit," say the Greeks; while Pliny asserted that cress vinegar restores sanity. According to analysis, watercress contains iodine, iron, phosphate and a sulpho-nitrogenous oil—a fine combination of wholesome properties. To be perfect, cress should be freshly gathered, well washed in cold water, shaken thoroughly dry, seasoned with salt and eaten with thin slices of bread and butter. Some prefer a dash of lemon juice with cress and a tablespoonful olive oil, but the epicure takes his with salt alone.

How to Hang Pictures.

Oil paintings and water colors should never be allowed to become intimate companions, but the latter may hobnob with etchings, pastels, drawings, photographs, and even engravings, without losing their dignity. An oil painting of exceptional excellence should be given a special position.

Water colors and pastels in delicate tints and black and whites and soft etchings should be properly placed in wall spaces where the light is strongest. The darker and more heavily shaded pictures should hang farther away from the light. From the family gallery the glances should be involuntarily but skillfully led to the deeper-toned pictures farther back in the room. Sometimes, however, a dark corner that needs brightening may demand a lighter picture or a spot of brilliant coloring may be risked. A pen-and-ink sketch with white mat fills in well in such a case. Harmony must be studied, and the position of a picture well considered before its place is decided. One with broad, white mat should never be hung next to a carbon in a heavy black frame. The eye must be led, not jerked, from one picture to another.

Starch for Starch.

There is a great difference of opinion about the starching of lace, some people objecting to any starch being put in it on the grounds that it makes the lace too stiff and tends to destroy it.

Take some clear starch and thin it down until it feels like slightly thickened water, or for heavy, thick laces, a little thicker; cook the lace well in this, then squeeze out gently with the hands; spread it out between the folds of a towel or handkerchief, beat between the hands or pass it through a wringing machine.

Avoid twisting it. After wringing pull the lace out gently with the fingers and roll it up with the wrong side inside, commencing at the left-hand end and with the points or edges away from you. This will be found the most convenient way to have it when ironing.

Odds and Ends of Hair.

When little scraggly ends of hair hang down over your collar all you need is a good brush, some back combs and a little perseverance to make them stay up with the rest. When arranging your coiffure brush these ends briskly and then place two back combs where they are needed. A few invisible hairpins will also conspire against widow locks. A little downy growth of hair on the cheeks should not be tampered with. When genuine bristles develop the electric needle should be used to annihilate them.

Re-Enameling a Bath.

For this you need a proper bath enamel. Sandpaper the bath before applying, and slightly heat the enamel. Heating makes it a little thinner, and it is easier to apply evenly. It will need two coats, or, if bad, three.

WHEN JEWELS NEED CLEANING.

Various Ornaments Require Different Modes of Treatment.

Many ornaments, when plain or worked and unadorned with gems, should be washed in warm soapsuds from time to time, excellent results being obtained if a few drops of sal volatile are added to the hot water before making the lather. In the case of chains composed of close links, which are most apt to harbor dirt and dust, few remedies equal that of placing them to soak in a bottle half full of warm soapsuds mixed with a little prepared chalk.

The chains should be left for a few hours, after which the bottle must be well shaken, the lather poured off, and the ornaments first rinsed in cold water and then dried as thoroughly as possible.

Diamonds, sapphires, rubies and emeralds are wonderfully restored if they are washed periodically in a little sal volatile and water, the surface being afterward polished with a clean chambray or soft piece of silk. Precious stones in general are usually improved if they are put away in box-wood sawdust instead of being inclosed in velvet-lined cases.

Turquoises must on no account be touched with water or kept in a damp place, while oil or grease is equally fatal to pearls, whether real or imitation.

In cases where real pearls have lost their luster, a method of treating them is that of laying them to soak for a few days in strong brine and water, many old authorities recommending, however, the curious baking treatment, the pearls being inclosed in a lump of dough and then baked in a slow oven. Jado ornaments soon lose their polish if they are neglected, and to remedy this few species equal the application of a paste of chalk and water.

Coral can be successfully cleaned by placing the ornaments in a saucpan full of boiling water and adding a few pieces of white soap and soda. They should be boiled for a few moments, then rinsed in tepid water and laid to dry on white paper.

FOR HOME-MADE CANDIES.

Some Delicious Confections That Are Not Costly.

Almond taffy.—To make a mound taffy boil together one-half pint of water and one pound of brown sugar for ten minutes. Blanch and slice through the middle one and one-half ounces of almonds; stir them in the sir up with two ounces of butter. Let the mixture boil hard for ten minutes. Pour on a well buttered dish to the thickness of one-half inch.

Candied Walnuts.—Put one and one-half cups of granulated sugar in a saucpan with one-half cup of water. Stir until the sugar is dissolved; then boil until the sirup will spin a short hair when dropped from the tips of a fork. Drop in cup pint of shelled walnut meats, and when the sugar again comes to the boiling point take from the fire and stir until the sirup changes to white candy, a portion of which will adhere to the nuts.

"Portiere" Is a Problem Often.

It is not always easy to secure material for portieres that is at once pretty and inexpensive. One woman who has been searching the town over for a fabric combining the two qualities was almost in despair when a friend, a decorator, suggested that she get mocha canvas for her sleeping room doors and velvet on a soft recede shade for her library doorway. As the walls were green the colors harmonized charmingly and all told did not cost more than $12 for the two pairs.

The canvas is loosely woven and resembles burlap in appearance, though much softer and hangs much more gracefully. It costs 50 cents a yard and is very wide. The velvet, which is also double width, can be obtained in a number of soft colorings, and while handsome is not so rich looking that it kills everything else in the room. It is especially effective with mahogany or dark oak and with Circassian walnut.

Proper Dish Washing.

The dirty dishes and plates should be put into a dish-tub of warm water at once when taken from the table; by this means half the trouble of washing-up will be saved, as it will prevent the gravy-juice, mustard, etc., from cooling and drying on the plates and dishes. When you commence washing them, add sufficient boiling water to make it very hot, and with a dishcloth wash on both sides, one at a time. Then rinse in a pan of cold water, or under a running tap; this makes them clean and bright looking, and removes any little grease that might remain. Now put them in a rack, or on one side to drain.

Buttered Apples.

Pare and core eight tart apples. Put them in a baking dish and fill the hollow of each with sugar and a tiny pinch of cinnamon or mace, if liked. As they cook baste them with a tablespoonful of butter melted in a cupful of hot water. Cover the apples with a cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water and a blade of mace five minutes. When the apples are tender—not broken—pour this over them after they are removed from the dish.

In Peeling Apples.

If a silver knife is used instead of a steel one the fingers will not become black, as acid from the apple unites with iron, but not with silver.

Lemons

Which have dried and hardened again will become quite soft if allowed to soak in cold water.

WASHING FINE LACE

UTMOST CARE NEEDED FOR THEIR PRESERVATION.

Delicate Fabrics Easily Ruined by Rough Handling—Rice Water Excellent to Use for Renovation of Delicate Material.

The washing and doting up of laces is very dainty work, so dainty, indeed, that it is useless leaving such things to strong-minded and stronger-limbed washerwomen, from whom such "darning" work gets either scant attention or a robust seal which is equally disastrous.

The fortunate possessor of very fine laces cannot be too careful in washing them. Even the gentlest rubbing must be avoided if the lace is to be preserved.

It goes without saying that no starch must be employed. If necessary these laces may be stiffened by the use of a little white sugar moulted in the last rinsing water. (White lace, if not too much soiled, may be revived by breathing on it, shaking and flapping it.)

Valenciennes and other soft laces may be stiffened with thin boiled starch, while duchess, Honiton and laces of that description can be stiffened with gum water.

Valenciennes is said to be the most profitable of the finer laces, and being made with a round, whole thread if treated with ordinary care can hardly be worn out.

It can be washed any number of times, and not being so easily destroyed as the point or applique laces, which are more or less fragile, it has the soft effect of lace without attracting too much examination.

Lace should always be soaked before washing, more especially if it is much soiled, in water in which a teaspoonful of borax has been dissolved. The water should be boiling, the usual proportion being one pint of water to every teaspoonful of borax. Then make a lather with some good soap and hot water.

BOARD OF TRADE MEETING

There will be a meeting of the board of trade in the city building this evening.

LONG NEEDED CHANGES In "Darkest Africa"

In Vicinity Of Vaughan Street Crossing

ARE LIKELY TO VERY SOON BE MADE

Mayor Hackett, Street Commissioner Ridgo and the committee on streets have recently made several visits to that part of Vaughan street near the railroad crossing. They have looked over the situation there, with the view of bettering conditions in that locality.

It is understood that the Boston and Maine railroad is anxious for some relief and that to get it the company will give part of the vacant lot now fenced in at the corner of Vaughan and Russell streets to the city for the improvements under consideration by the Mayor and Street Commissioner.

The plan that the city will carry out is to widen the street at the crossing by using part of the lot where the old White Hart Hotel formerly stood and make a proper turn for the entrance to Russell street, something that has been badly needed for years.

By such a change, teams could enter Russell street from Vaughan street without going onto the railroad crossing, which at present they are obliged to do.

Other alterations in the street and on the crossing are also planned, but it is not known when the work will be done.

Mayor Hackett will shortly go to Boston, where he will take up the matter with the authorities of the Boston and Maine railroad.

SHERIFF ATHONNE BUSY

Is Making Life None Too Pleasant For Liquor Dealers

Sheriff George O. Athorne and his deputies have been busy in York county of late and those who are attempting an illegal liquor business have found life none too pleasant.

The Sheriff and his men visited Biddeford on Saturday and called at several places where it was reported that liquor had been sold. In four cases their search was fruitless and a fifth place visited had been closed for two weeks.

At a place where one Cleophas Bergeron appeared to be in charge a trap, worked by a spring, was discovered in a passageway leading to a shed. Beneath the trap were nearly three dozen bottles of beer and more than a dozen half-pint bottles of whiskey. Bergeron denied that he was the proprietor, asserting that he sold his interest in the place to a man named Chamberlain on April 1. He was held, nevertheless.

NEW BASEBALL TEAM

With Fast Local Players Organized In This City

A fast baseball team is to be shortly organized here to represent Portsmouth. A Herald reporter was today (Monday) informed by one of the promoters that the team will be made up as follows:

Coach and P. Newell, pitchers; Clark and P. J. Barrett, catchers; Pendergast, first base; Sullivan, second base; Moran, third base; Cragen, shortstop; Dorsey, right field; Lynsky, left field; T. Barrett, center field.

Moran and Sullivan lately came here from Nashua and are employed at the forge plant. Both are said to be fast men and have played with fast teams in and out of this state.

They would like to hear from Kittery and from other strong teams in this vicinity. Games can be arranged by addressing P. J. Barrett, manager, Portsmouth.

POLICE COURT

Charles Newberry and Manuel Holbrook, sailors from one of the ships lying at the North End let loose on Saturday, when they got shore liberty and passed Sunday sleeping off the effects of their celebration at the police station.

George Forbes, for drunkenness, was sent up for ninety days, with costs of $6.90 to work out.

AT THE NAVY YARD

The yards and docks department men are erecting a staging around the burned pattern ship and will remove such parts of the standing walls as are considered dangerous. It is understood that the building will be roofed at the second story and used as a store house.

The recent concert and ball of the boilermakers and shipfitters was decidedly successful and they will add $100 or more to their treasury as a result.

Ferry steamer, No. 32, which was expected to be taken off her route last week for repairs, is still doing duty and, it is said, will be hauled into the shiphouse this week.

Work on the collier Leonidas is expected to be completed on May 18 and work will immediately begin on the Hannibal, shortly to arrive here.

The marines at the barracks have formed a social and glee club, with rooms in Kittery.

The recent fire at the yard is said to have a bearing on the fact that some of the old wooden buildings on the reservation will go out of commission.

A story is going the rounds that one of the contractors, indicted at Portland recently for violation of the eight-hour law at this yard while filling contracts, had to pay fines amounting to $400.

The question is being asked what will be done with the wooden dry dock. No move on the part of the present owners, Samuel Butler and Company, has been made since the boat went into their possession on April 15.

WILL SING THE 46TH PSALM

Choir of Unitarian Church to Give Fine Musical Number

The choir of the Unitarian Church is arranging for a fine musical program, to be given on Sunday, May 12. On that day the forty-sixth Psalm and a variety of Dudley Buck's music will be rendered. The following singers will assist the regular quartet:

Soprano: Mrs. Wendell, Mrs. Montgomery, Miss Pearson, Miss Hanson; alto: Mrs. Priest, Miss Garland, Miss Marshall, Miss Pierce; tenors: Mr. Parker, Mr. Whitcomb, Mr. Philbrick, Mr. Jewett; basses: Mr. Gray, Mr. Montgomery, Mr. Whittier, Mr. Pigeon.

STILL ALARM

A still alarm on Saturday night, called the chemical engine to the residence of H. C. Hopkins on Miller avenue, where a fire had started through an explosion in the bathroom and the curtains had been thrown onto the roof of an ell. The damage was slight.

DEEDS FILED

On Transfer Of Hotel Westworth And

Newington

W. J. McDonald of Boston, the real estate broker through whom the Hotel Westworth and Rockingham were sold to a syndicate of Boston and New York people, was here Saturday night at the Rockingham hotel. Mr. McDonald will represent the owners of the property and Mr. Frank C. Hall, the present manager of the Somerset Hotel, Boston, will take charge of both hotels.

Mr. Hall will begin active preparations to open the Hotel Westworth on the regular opening date, July first, and it is understood that there will be several changes made about the hotel. He will also have the Rockingham hotel, and it is not definitely settled who will be the resident manager, as Mr. Hall will only pass a portion of his time here.

The deeds of the property were filed at Exeter on Saturday and bear the date of January 18, which was when the option was taken for the hotels.

There is filed a mortgage excepted by Tripp in favor of the trustees in the sum of $40,000. In a third instrument, Tripp sells to William H. White of Brookline, Mass., with office at 87 Milk street, Boston. In a fourth paper the trustees sell to Mr. Tripp the Westworth house property, consideration named $1. There is also a return mortgage to the trustees for $30,000, and Tripp in another conveys this property also to White. It is directed that the deeds, after recording, be sent to L. D. Towle, 16 State street, Boston.

It will be seen from the deeds filed that the trustees of the Frank Jones estate still have a substantial lien on the property in the form of mortgages.

Emery was the guest of Henry F. Hollis.

RAILROAD NOTES

Trains have been and several of the regular crews have been working early and late between Portsmouth and Manchester, moving coal from the tracks in this yard.

The officials of the company are busily engaged in making up the Summer schedules and time tables for the different divisions. New trains will be added on the Eastern division.

Everybody is pleased to hear of the improvements planned at the corner of Russell and Vaughan streets.

The carpenters started today (Monday) repairing the H. A. Yeaton and Son building on Market street, owned by the railroad company.

Four extra freights from the east, with many cars of perishable goods, passed through this station on Sunday.
